A FRESH APPROACH TO FUNDRAISING

7th July 2002, Bend Oregon

ContribuNet has arrived with a product that provides unparalleled Internet Access that comes with a bonus...

Every month, ContribuNet delivers $5 from each customer to a non-profit organization or charity of their choice. Given that there are 149 million Americans with Internet access accounts, the program has the potential to provide a substantial boost to American and global charities.

ContribuNet allows individuals and families the opportunity to register for the service through its website or Toll-Free phone number. As they register they can choose which charity they wish to support.

The company used a strong technological infrastructure and partnerships to develop a service with competitive rates and premium service. Dial-up Internet service is available for $16.95 per month and Cable service will be implemented by 2003.

“We are serving all the customers who are tired of their money going to unbelievably wealthy companies with questionable scruples, or those who think their Internet service is slow or inadequate,” says Paul Farrell, ContribuNet Project Coordinator.

“Big organizations are a huge part of the economy, but I think people like having the opportunity to be good Samaritans – particularly when they are paying less for our service than they would for that of the big players, getting superior quality and helping their favorite charity.”
